

Interdisciplinary Orthodontics: the path to sustainable success.

WELCOME

The key to sustainable success in orthodontics is interdisciplinarity. In my team, we incorporate specialists from different disciplines early in order to achieve our functional and esthetic goals. The question we often ask ourselves: «Is it possible to meet all the goals by doing only orthodontics?» Often enough, the answer is «No» and this is the reason why we need to work in a team environment. Each member of my group works together with other experts thus striving for excellence.

We always try to be at the forefront and cutting-edge of orthodontics. Today, everything changes extremely fast. In order to keep up with that speed, we need to re-invent ourselves almost daily. Being up-to-date sometimes means already being out-of-date. Therefore, we never stop advancing and this can easily be recognized by our approach to interdisciplinary orthodontics.

As a matter of fact, we do not only treat teeth, we treat patients – and patients are inevitably much more than only teeth. Orthodontics does not start and end in the mouth, more elements must be considered so that patients always receive the best possible result, both esthetically and functionally. Orthodontics is related to the stomatognathic system and therefore we strictly take a holistic view on different aspects. This course is prepared with great care, enthusiasm and interesting clinical cases. Screens and online courses are fine, but meeting people is incomparably unique and much more exciting. We hope to see you soon. And do not forget: «Treatment mechanics is still the key to success to achieve excellence in orthodontics: with or without aligners».
